"Realistic office romance with a great twist" - Dalkey Book Club, Dublin

Contemporary Irish romantic suspense set in Ireland and Chicago.

Christine is a successful meteorologist with a loving family, great friends and an exciting career working for an international investment bank. So why does she spend every January 20th crying like her heart might break? As everyone around her appears to be moving on with their lives, Christine wears her past like a pair of concrete shoes. Can nothing, or nobody help her shake them?

Mark thought he had all he ever wanted. Head of the bank's Irish operations, he has the career, the house and the relationship any man would wish for. But when his seemingly perfectly planned life suddenly strays totally off course, Mark is confronted with the fact that he isn't actually in control at all...

A storm is gathering...

Satisfying and emotional read

By Amazon Customer

A well written tale of love and loss with a satisfying resolution, the characters in Alberta Clipper are finely drawn and Sheena Lambert's brilliant observation moves the story swiftly along. Lambert obviously has an indepth knowledge of the environment her characters inhabit, not least of the Alberta Clipper - but you'll have to read the book to discover what that is, and its significance! An impressive debut that bodes well for Lambert's writing career, highly recommended.

Believable story about love and loss and finding your soulmate

By Charlotte Lynn

Christine Grogan has been living with terrible guilt. On January 20th of each year she spends the day grieving over this guilt. The rest of the year her life appears great. She is 28 years old, with a job as a meteorologist at an investment bank, has a loving family, and great friends. She just has to find a way to move on with her life.

Mark Harrington is in a relationship that is heading any where and has realized he has not had any control over it. Other than that he has everything else going for him. He is head of an international bank, handsome, and owns his own house. He just needs to get control of his love life, which he hopes includes Christine.

Alberta Clipper is a true romance story. Early on I knew Mark was in love with Christine, but Christine was clueless. Through a Christmas party, conferences, and a New Years Eve party Christine and Mark finally start some type of a relationship. But I was still hoping Christine would open up and share a part of her that very few know about. For their relationship to last, and I was hoping it would, they had to have honesty and trust.

It seemed every character in this book had their own short story to add to the main story. All these stories let me better understand the hows and whys of how each character was as they were. Everything from insider trading, Christine's past and office drama were covered making this so much more than just a love story.

Sheena Lambert wrote a believable story about love and loss and finding your soulmate. It is also a story of guilt, forgiveness, and betrayal. I highly recommend this novel to everyone.

Good everyday story

By Mara

Not compelling, but a well-written story about the sort of everyday romance that many people have. No stalkers, serial murderers, vampires, werewolves, etc! Just a good story about realistic people and the kind of relationships that really happen.
